

LITERARY TERMS II 9th GRADE MATCH THE COLUMNS

The most important characters in a narrative.

Less important characters.

The main character in a narrative.

A character or a force that is in conflict with the protagonist.

A fully developed character with many personality traits.

He or she has only one or two personality traits.

The way in which a writer reveals a character's personality.

The writer makes direct statements about a character.

The writer hints at what a character is through a variety of methods.

The perspective from which a literary work is told.

The narrator is a character who is part of the action and presents his/her perspective.

The narrator is someone outside the action.

The contrast between appearance and reality.

Something that actually happened and can be justified.

Judgment or belief about something or someone.

Antagonist

Flat character

Direct characterization

Minor characters

Characterization

Protagonist

Round character

Major characters

First-person point of view

Irony

Indirect characterization

Opinion

Fact

Point of view

Third-person point of view