

Complete the following passage with the words from the bubble terrace captured surgery inherit quechua descendants sacred collected diseases fit peasants empire pipes

The Inca people made the largest in South America between 1400 and 1533. Sapa Inca was their emperor and he was considered a god. So everything he did, touched or said was considered He was very rich but when he died, his son didn't all his wealth.

The Royal people taxes and took care of the villages and properties of the Emperor.

Commoners or worked for the Empire and had little freedom. They built roads, rope bridges that connected all the empire, and houses with tightly..... stones.

The Incas lived in the Andean Mountains and it was difficult to have flat land to cultivate so, they created the..... farming: they made steps on the sides of the mountain. They also made or aqueducts to carry water to different places.

The Incas also had very advanced techniques like brain to cure people. When the Sapa Inca died there was a civil war to choose the next emperor. At the same time, Francisco Pizarro arrived in Cusco and he the Incas cities and spread like smallpox that killed almost everyone in the Empire.

Nowadays, there are a lot of in modern Peru who continue speaking the Inca language of and there are also traces of this great civilization in settlements like Machu Picchu