Continuing our regular feature of fathers and sons, this week we talk to artist Chris Dennis and his son, Kirk. Last weekend Chris taught Kirk to draw, and Kirk taught his father to windsurf.

Like father, like son

Chris We're a very close family. There are a lot of similarities between me and Kirk, and we both like being outside. He's much more active than me, of course – but he's 20 and I'm 52, so that's not surprising! I spend a lot of time walking on the cliffs by the ocean and sometimes I do 100 drawings in a day. During his free time, Kirk is usually on the water windsurfing, and he can spend all day doing that.

I've never been windsurfing, but I thought it would be good to try it. On the day Kirk took me out, it was fairly warm but the waves were pretty rough – not great conditions for a beginner! We went to a beach. I borrowed an old wetsuit that was a little small and tight. Kirk swam next to me and showed me how to balance on the board, and how to keep the sail vertical. It was exhausting!

I really enjoyed the experience, but I won't take up windsurfing. My time is too precious for another big hobby. But I was surprised at how much I liked it. The best thing about the weekend, however, was sharing time together with my son.

Kirk Dad and I are really close. We get along like friends as well as father and son. But because I'm away at college and I only see Mom and Dad every two or three months, we don't have much chance to do things together.

My dad spends most of his free time drawing. He goes on long walks and always takes a sketchbook with him. I thought it would be interesting to see if I had any of his talent!

On the day we went out, we walked along the cliffs above a beach. We each had a sketchbook and we were drawing as we went along. I hadn't done any drawing since I was in elementary school, so it was difficult to start with. Dad was giving me advice all the time, and I did lots of drawings, but I couldn't see any improvement by the end! My mom said she liked them, but I think she was just being nice.

I'll definitely go for a walk with Dad again, but I don't think I'll take any drawing stuff. I'm never going to be an artist!
