SOMETHING DIFFERENT

Little Alfie was feeling bored. He wondered if there was anything he could do that was different from the usual stuff. He wanted to do something that he had never done before.

Alfie's mother suggested that he helped her with some housework, but he thought that was such a chore. Then she suggested that he weeded the garden, but the sun was too hot. Alfie's mother suggested a few other activities that Alfie normally did not do, but Alfie always found some reason not to do them.

Finally, Alfie simply plopped himself in front of the television and sat watching the advertisements. Then, suddenly, a wave of inspiration washed over him. Alfie had been watching an advertisement on a new brand of ice cream. He thought it would be fabulous to make his very own ice cream dessert.

Excitedly, Alfie ran into the pantry to see what he could find there. To his delight, he found a bunch of bananas hanging from a knob on the cupboard, a bottle of hundreds and thousands, a can of cherries (with the stalks still on them), a squeeze bottle filled with yummy brown caramel, and a can of whipped cream – just the right ingredients to make a delicious banana split!

Alfie laid out all the ingredients on the dining table. Then, excitedly, he went to the freezer to get the ice cream. Cold air drifted out of the freezer box as soon as Alfie opened the door. Alfie stood in front of the freezer, enjoying the cold air while his eyes searched for the ice cream. But the only ice cream Alfie could find was an iced lolly – the kind with a stick on it.

Alfie was disappointed. How would he be able to make a banana split with an iced lolly?! Alfie pondered over the problem for a moment. Then, suddenly, an idea hit him from out of the blue. Alfie took the wrapper off the iced lolly and put the ice cream onto a plate. Then, carefully, he used a butter knife to separate the green icy layer from the creamy centre. With a teaspoon, he scooped the green ice onto an oval glass dish, making a neat little pile in the middle of the dish. After that, he divided the creamy centre into two portions and scooped them onto either sides of the green ice on the glass dish. By then, the ice cream had begun to melt, and Alfie had to work as fast as he could.

Seeing that Alfie was enjoying himself, Alfie's mother decided to give him a little help. She peeled the banana and cut it into two long strips. Alfie placed the strips on either sides of the ice cream. Then, he sprayed the whipped cream over the ice cream, dribbled the caramel on top of the cream and sprinkled lots of hundreds and thousands over that. Finally, he topped the ice cream with a bright red cherry. At last, his banana split was complete!

Alfie's mother took a picture of the dessert before Alfie happily dug into it. It was the best ice cream he had ever tasted!
