Look, Mum! I've bought a car on eBay for £9,000

By a Daily Telegraph Correspondent

A three-year-old boy used his mother's computer to buy a £9,000 car on the Internet auction site eBay.

Jack Neal's parents only discovered their son's successful bid when they received a message from the website.

The message said they (1) had bought a pink Nissan Figaro.

Mrs Neal, 36, said that they (2) _____ it. She explained that she (3) _____ on the Net the day before, but she (4) _____ anything.

'Jack kept telling us that he (5) _____ so happy, and that we (6) _____ soon get a big surprise.'

Mrs Neal, from Sleaford, Lincs, thought Jack (7) _____. He often used the computer, and she was pretty sure that he (8) _____ her password.

Her husband, John, 37, phoned the seller of the car, and explained that there (9) _____ a mistake.

'Fortunately he saw the funny side and said he (10) _____ the car again.'

Mr Neal has told Jack to be more careful, and he has asked his wife to change her password.

1 You have bought a pink Nissan Figaro.

2 We can't understand it.

4 I didn't buy anything.

6 You'll soon get a big surprise!

8 I'm pretty sure he knows my password.

3 I was on the Net yesterday.

5 I'm so happy!

7 He's joking.

9 There has been a mistake.

10 I'll advertise the car again.
