Could you be a placemaker?

How [1] ..... (you / feel) if you look around where you live? Safe or vulnerable, inspired or bored? Or maybe you think, 'Why worry? I couldn't have a say about my city even if I [2] ..... (want) to.' Now an organisation called the Project for Public Places wants to change that. They transform public spaces and build strong communities. They call this 'placemaking' and they involve young people in the process.

If you [3] ..... (be born) in Fremantle, Australia, you could have helped to create a skatepark with a difference. When kids turn up there now, they [4] ..... just ..... skate (not / skate). There's a parkour park, climbing wall, table tennis and a stage.

If you [5] ..... (be) a street artist in your town, where would you paint – and stay legal? The Alley Project in Detroit, USA, has put professional artists together with 120 young people to showcase local talent.

So what [6] ..... (you / create) if you could be a placemaker? And if you'd been the head of planning, how [7] ..... (you / do) things differently?
