ELEPHANT

There _____ two species of elephants: the Asian elephant and the African elephant. Did you know that it is the _____ living land animal today? When it is born, the baby elephant already weighs more than 100 kg. As an adult, it can reach 6 tons of weight and measure about 4 m in height. The elephant is so _____ that it has to sleep standing up and is unable to _____ over the slightest obstacle. However, it is a very peaceful animal. Of course, if it feels threatened, it does not hesitate to attack its attackers at full speed moving its huge _____, which makes it impressive and sometimes very dangerous. His ears, in addition to being large, are special because they allow him to perspire. The elephant _____ and _____ with the help of its trunk, which ends in two agile fingers. Sometimes, it helps itself with its fangs to find food. The fangs are actually highly developed ivory teeth (incisors).

LIVEWORKSHEETS

Questions:

1. How many types of elephants are there?

2. What does “huge” mean?

3. What does “trunk” mean?

4. What does “fangs” mean?

LIVEWORKSHEETS