WHO WAS KING TUT?

King Tutankhamun became ruler of Ancient Egypt when he was just nine years old. The Boy King died just ten years later and he was buried in a golden coffin surrounded by 5,000 priceless treasures, including animal statues, jewellery, clothes, weapons and even toys. Some Egyptologists believe King Tut may have died in a chariot crash. But the cause of his death remains a mystery today!

FINDING TUT'S TOMB

The tomb was found by British archaeologist Howard Carter in November 1922. Howard had spent many years excavating the tombs of Egyptian kings and queens when he came across a cup engraved with the name of a pharaoh – Tutankhamun.

Howard became convinced that Tut's tomb was buried somewhere in the Valley of the Kings. But after 8 years of searching he had found nothing. Then, just when he was about to give up, one of his crew – a young boy who was a water fetcher – found a stair carved into the rock.

When Howard and his Crew entered the tomb, they found thousands of treasures that had been left almost untouched, more than 3,300 years after the Egyptian Pharaoh's death. It was the only Ancient Egyptian royal tomb ever found intact. Wow!

THE CURSE

The discovery caused a sensation, and the little-known king became the most famous Pharaoh on the planet.

With the world gripped by Ancient-Egyptian fever, the media were desperate to publish new, exciting stories. So when Lord Canarvon (the wealthy man who financed the search for Tut) died from an infected mosquito bite on his cheek, the newspapers invented a story that it was because Tutankhamun's tomb was cursed. Eeeek!
