

REVIEW: CARLOS II, WAR OF SUCCESSION AND FELIPE V

- Watch this video and then, answer the following questions.

1) How do we call the war that took place at that time in Spain?

2) This war brought two important consequences. Choose the right choice.

- The arrival of a new royal dynasty of French origin to the throne of Spain: the Bourbons.
- The loss of possessions in Europe and Spain: Gibraltar and Menorca now belonged to France.
- The arrival of a new royal dynasty of Italian origin to the throne of Spain: the Medici.
- The loss of possessions in Europe and Spain: Gibraltar and Menorca now belonged to England.

3) The war was finished due to the Treaty of Utrecht (1713) and some important decisions were taken.

a) He is appointed as King of Spain.

Fernando VI

Felipe V

Felipe VI

b) He gave up the Crown of

Francia

Portugal

Andorra

c) Spain lost some territories. Which ones now belonged to Austria?

The Netherlands

Gibraltar

Napoli

d) Which territories are now English?

Mallorca

Gibraltar

Cataluña

3. Complete the diagram with the suitable names.

Died in 1700 without any successor.

Duke of Anjou and grandson of Louis XIV ("El Rey Sol")

Once he was appointed as king, he was known as...

Known as "The Hechizado".

Carlos II named him as his successor.

Certain people supported this archduke, Austrian emperor.

However, the union of Spain and _____ wasn't accepted by other European countries.

The Habsburg dynasty ended, and it started another one...

This country supported the Austrian emperor.

So... the war of _____ broke out.

This war lasted for _____ years. (1701-1713)

4. Click only in the TRUE sentences about FELIPE V.

He was king once.

His reign was the longest of Spanish history.

One of his wives was Isabel de Saboya.

He suffered from bipolar disorder.

His son died very soon.

He married three different wives.