

Dear Jan,

_____ I hope you're doing well, especially if what you want is to get a job at the Ultra Music Festival in Scotland because you will need the energy to cope with it. _____.

I must say that I was very excited to have the opportunity to work in the event last year, that's why the first day was a bit of a disappointment. I was in a small office all day long doing routine jobs: picking up the phone, _____ and doing paperwork. _____ I wasn't able to listen to much music at first. _____, things were not so terrible and after a couple of days, they improved somehow.

Time flew _____ and the pay day arrived -that made me cheer up. Wages are good and will allow you to spare some money for your dream holiday, unless you splash it all out in drinks with your friends. _____ you want to save some money, you will have to be careful with that!

_____, I would advise you to get your First Certificate before traveling. You will be able to practice your English both in the office and going out, but if you want to make the most of it, you'll need to be fluent.

_____, I think this could be a good experience for you. Not because of the practical learning but because you will make a great life experience _____. Use all of your charm and talk to people _____ you have the opportunity - I think this shouldn't be a problem since you're the most outgoing person I've ever met.

Well, _____. Let me know what you decide!

Lots of love,

Cris.
