TRANSPORT IN MANCHESTER

About the city of Manchester:

1. Manchester is a big city in the north west of England. The city is probably best known for being the home of one of the most famous football clubs in the world, Manchester United. People from Manchester speak with a northern English accent, and are often referred as Mancunians.

Road transport in the Greater Manchester area:

2. Greater Manchester is located at the heart of the transport network in the north west of England. Much of the region's transport infrastructure is centred on the city of Manchester with the Manchester Inner Ring Road, which has several major roads circulating the city centre. The region is the only place in the UK to have a fully orbital motorway, the M60, which passes through all of the towns in Greater Manchester.

Trains:

3. Manchester is very well served by train services and has two mainline railway stations (Victoria and Piccadilly), linked to and extensive local rail network. Manchester airport is also served by its own railway station. In terms of passengers, Manchester Piccadilly was the third busiest English train station outside London in 2015 and 2016. High speed trains to London operated by Virgin Trains run from Manchester Piccadilly station, with journeys typically taking around two hours and fifteen minutes.

Buses:

4. Manchester has one of the most extensive bus networks in the UK outside London, with more than fifty bus companies operating in the Greater Manchester area that discharges out of the city. The main bus companies serving the region are First Manchester for the northern districts and Stagecoach Manchester for districts south of the city. The First Manchester bus company runs a zero-fare bus service called Metroshuttle, which operates on three city centre routes, ferrying passengers around Manchester's various business districts.
