

There is (are/was/were) vs It is (was)

There is is normally used when something is talked about for the first time and then It (or They) is used to refer back to the original thing or situation.

e.g. There is a ship over there. It has come from Denmark.

e.g. There were 100 people at the conference. They came from all over the world.

There is is also used for something that exists or is located somewhere.

e.g. There is a lot of traffic during peak hour.

e.g. There are ATM machines all over the city.

It is is usually used in statements about the following:

fact – It is our opinion that all children should have ten years of education.

time – It is half past eleven.

weather – It is raining now.

distance – It is not far to drive to Drammen from Oslo.

general environment – It is very dusty in this house.

Practice Exercises

Use There is/was or There are/were or It is or It or They to complete the sentences below:

1. _____ many meeting rooms in the building but _____ are often occupied.
2. If _____ a problem with the computer, please let me know.
3. Look! _____ a clock on that building. _____ 1:15 so we should go to the bus stop now or we will miss our bus.
4. _____ common knowledge that too much alcohol can cause both mental and physical health problems.
5. _____ a saying in English - ' _____ no use crying over spilt milk'.
6. _____ possible that we are killing the planet with pollution.
7. _____ two more items that I would like to add to the meeting agenda.
8. _____ several new projects that we will soon be working on.
_____ will involve the training of new staff.
9. Yesterday _____ a big traffic jam when I was driving home.
_____ looked like there had been an accident because ambulances and police cars kept going past.
10. _____ very sunny yesterday so _____ lots of people at the beach.