BRITS WEAR RED NOSES

Yesterday was an unusual day in the UK. The British were wearing red noses and big red wigs. Students weren't wearing uniforms; most of them had red clothes on. Lots of professionals were working in their pyjamas. Most people were only eating red food (tomatoes, strawberries and red apples, for example) and drinking red beverages. What happened to the Brits? Did they all go mad?

In fact, yesterday was a very special day in Britain that is called Red Nose Day, a UK-wide fundraising event organised by Comic Relief, a charity that helps thousands of poor people across the UK and Africa. On this day everyone in England, Northern Ireland, Scotland and Wales is encouraged to do something a bit silly to raise money. People buy red noses, wear funny red clothes, dye their hair red, have garage sales and take part in sponsored walks and races, among other things.

Red Nose Day takes place every two years. This year's campaign was a success and Comic Relief collected over £87 million, that's about 137 million dollars! You can participate in the campaign too. Buy a red nose, have a good laugh and make a donation!
