Activities after the meal

A: Well, I would say either going for a walk or watching a film. Do you agree?

B: I'm not sure. Some people enjoy playing computer games, but a lot of people don't like them – especially older people.

A: Yes, good idea. We'll go for that one then.

A: Yes, I think that's a great idea. Most people enjoy playing these games, and even the older people who don't like computer games can take part.

Would going for a walk be a good idea?

A: So, shall we start with the computer game? What do you think about that idea?

A: I agree with you. Older people don't usually like these games. And I don't think that a traditional game is a good idea because these games are a bit boring, in my opinion.

B: That's true. And there are often arguments when people play them.
Most people like going for a walk.
A: Well, it's OK if there's a nice park or something near where you live.
B: OK, so that's possible. Would football be a good idea? Or volleyball?

B: No, I disagree. I think that some people are bad losers. They only like playing when they win.
A: Yes, you're right. So what about a film? Maybe that would be a better choice.
B: Yes, I agree that would be a good choice. Everyone loves watching films. So, what else is there? I think relaxing in the garden is boring. What do you think?
A: Yes, I agree. It's boring, especially for young people.
B: OK. So, it's time to decide. What do you think?

B: Yes, but I think a film is more fun because you can choose something funny, so everyone will laugh together, and you can enjoy a film even when it gets a bit colder, in the evening. So maybe we should choose the film. Are you OK with that?
