

Listen to this song.

Drag and drop.

MY CRAZY FAMILY

Every breakfast,

eggs

oh, yucky,

There's my mother with green

hair

But my father

brother,

There's my sister who jelly,

likes

lunch and dinner

And my

fun

Who eats nothing but jelly.

he can

What a strange and crazy family!

doesn't care

But my of all,

Mister Crazy

Is my crazy

He can sing, make us fly!

Uncle Paul

tea

jump and jump so high!

He can eat a dozen

love

He can two gallons straight!

aunt

in the family!

favourite one

But I love as I love

crazy family!

My little

And we laugh and we run,

drink

Oh together we have

my crazy

Mother, father, brother, sister,

Uncle, cousins together!

Yes, I my crazy family!

Yes, I love , crazy, crazy family!

to fly

to jump

to jump

jelly (an orange, pink or green dessert !)

to laugh

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1995. The public sector has also become an important employer of women, with 60% of public sector employees being women in 1995, compared with 50% in 1980. The public sector has also become an important employer of people with disabilities, with 10% of public sector employees being people with disabilities in 1995, compared with 5% in 1980.

The public sector has also become an important employer of people from ethnic minorities, with 10% of public sector employees being people from ethnic minorities in 1995, compared with 5% in 1980. The public sector has also become an important employer of people from the lower social classes, with 10% of public sector employees being people from the lower social classes in 1995, compared with 5% in 1980.

The public sector has also become an important employer of people with low qualifications, with 10% of public sector employees being people with low qualifications in 1995, compared with 5% in 1980. The public sector has also become an important employer of people with low income, with 10% of public sector employees being people with low income in 1995, compared with 5% in 1980.

The public sector has also become an important employer of people with low skills, with 10% of public sector employees being people with low skills in 1995, compared with 5% in 1980. The public sector has also become an important employer of people with low motivation, with 10% of public sector employees being people with low motivation in 1995, compared with 5% in 1980.

The public sector has also become an important employer of people with low commitment, with 10% of public sector employees being people with low commitment in 1995, compared with 5% in 1980. The public sector has also become an important employer of people with low loyalty, with 10% of public sector employees being people with low loyalty in 1995, compared with 5% in 1980.

The public sector has also become an important employer of people with low integrity, with 10% of public sector employees being people with low integrity in 1995, compared with 5% in 1980. The public sector has also become an important employer of people with low honesty, with 10% of public sector employees being people with low honesty in 1995, compared with 5% in 1980.

The public sector has also become an important employer of people with low respectfulness, with 10% of public sector employees being people with low respectfulness in 1995, compared with 5% in 1980. The public sector has also become an important employer of people with low politeness, with 10% of public sector employees being people with low politeness in 1995, compared with 5% in 1980.

The public sector has also become an important employer of people with low kindness, with 10% of public sector employees being people with low kindness in 1995, compared with 5% in 1980. The public sector has also become an important employer of people with low generosity, with 10% of public sector employees being people with low generosity in 1995, compared with 5% in 1980.

The public sector has also become an important employer of people with low compassion, with 10% of public sector employees being people with low compassion in 1995, compared with 5% in 1980. The public sector has also become an important employer of people with low empathy, with 10% of public sector employees being people with low empathy in 1995, compared with 5% in 1980.