

Choose the correct form: active form or passive form?

Tibet is a large country situated in the South of Asia, North East of India.

Before 1950, it was an independent country, but in 1950, it was invaded by / invaded China and it claimed / was claimed as a part of PRC (People Republic of China).

In 1959, Tibetan people protested / were protested and demonstrated / were demonstrated, but this protest violently repressed / was violently repressed by the Chinese authorities. Many Tibetans killed / were killed and many imprisoned / were imprisoned. Numerous Buddhist temples destroyed / were destroyed.

The Dalaï Lama, as well as the Tibetan government, forced / were forced to flee their country and exiled / were exiled. Since then, they still exiled / are still exiled, and China is still reigned over by / still reigns over Tibet.

However, protest is not over. Since 2009, at least 154 Tibetans have been immolated / have self-immolated in an ultimate act of rebellion.

Video from Euronews in English

Video from Euronews in French

<https://youtu.be/shMr29qLMHQ>