

My Great-Grandmother Meets Hurricane Cleo

Hurricane Cleo struck the United States in August, 1964. My great-grandmother, Ana, was traveling in Miami when the hurricane struck. She (said / told) me that she still remembers how scared everyone was. She (said/told) me that the hotel (has called / had called) her room one morning and had (said / told) her that a bigstorm (is/was) on the way. They (said/ told) that all hotel guests (have to/had to) stay in the hotel until the weather service (tell / said) that it (is / was) safe to leave. She stayed in her room, and she didn't know what happened until the storm was over. When she turned on the TV, the reports (said / told) that alot of people (have been /had been) injured and that all the toads (are/were) flooded. She always (says / said) that she still (feels / felt) lucky to have survived Hurricane Cleo.
