

Listen to Mirand Ingram, who is married to Alexandar Anichkin, talking about the difference between Russian and British manners. Listen and correct the underlined sentences.

1. Alexandar arrived Miranda's flat and said to her, Nalei mnye chai – which means 'pour me some water' in Russian.
2. Miranda thought his words sounded very sweet.
3. Before Miranda took Alexander to meet her sister in the UK, she taught him about English manners.
4. In Russia, people think that you are delighted when you smile all the time.
5. During a dinner party in England, everyone said that the food was awful.
6. People in England are more direct and say things honestly.
7. Alexandar's mother wanted to add more salt and sugar into the soup.
8. Alexandar and Miranda had an argument before Alexandar's mother left.
9. Both of them now agree that when they speak in Russian, Alexandar has to add some polite words and a smile.