We use the past simple: - for past (finished) actions, often with time words like a year ago, last Sunday, in 2010, yesterday, etc.: The first modern Olympics took place in Athens more than a hundred years ago. They arrived in Spain yesterday. - for past habits or states: He always caught the same train. Long ago, they built most houses out of wood. - for past states, events or actions that lasted for a period of time in the past: We were neighbours for twenty-five years.	We use the present perfect: - for actions that happened at an unspecified time in the past: They have arrived in Spain. - for past actions that have a result which is obvious or important in the present: They have polluted the river. (= And now the fish are dead.) You've spilt the coffee all over my trousers! (= And now they're ruined.) - for recently completed actions, often with just: The film's just started. - to refer to a period of time that has not finished yet. We've built twenty schools this year. (= It is still this year.) - for general experiences, often with before, ever and never. Have you ever seen an elephant? We've never been to Australia. She's never flown before. - for actions, events or situations that began in the past and continue in the present, often with for and since: They have lived here for six years. (= They still live here.) Mr Edwards has worked here since 2009. (= He still works here.) - with the following words: already, yet, recently, often, still: The rain has already destroyed the crops. We still haven't discovered life on other planets. They haven't finished the project yet.

Past simple or present perfect simple?

- To talk about a period of time that has finished, we use the past simple. To talk about a period of time that has not yet finished, we use the present perfect simple. Compare:
I had two sandwiches this morning.
(= It is now afternoon or evening.)
I 've had two sandwiches this morning.
(= It is still morning.)
- The choice between the past simple and the present perfect simple depends on whether the action links the past with the present. Compare:
He did a lot in his short life.
(= He is dead.)
He has done a lot in his short life.
(= He is alive and young.)

Present perfect continuous

Form

I 've been waiting for a whole hour!
- Notice the difference between the present perfect simple and the present perfect continuous:
I 've read this book. (= I have finished it. The focus here is on the fact that the action is complete.)
