Lewis Hamilton – free-time formula

Lewis Hamilton became a professional driver about four years before he passed his driving test! At thirteen years of age, the Formula One team McLaren signed him to their Youth programme. Since then, he has become a world-famous racing driver as well as a multi-millionaire. He's driven in Formula One races all over the world and he's stood on the winners' podium dozens of times.

Lewis lives (and drives) in the fast lane, but he knows how to relax, too. One of his passions is football. He used to play for his school team and he's been an Arsenal fan for most of his life.

Lewis also loves music: 'I like rock, funk, hip-hop, R and B, soul and jazz, but I was basically brought up on reggae. I've been listening to Bob Marley ever since I was a child,' he says. He doesn't only listen; he's been playing the guitar for many years. He always takes his guitar with him when he travels and he practises whenever he gets the chance. He's good – in fact in 2012 he played his guitar in a TV advertisement (it was for mobile phones).

He enjoys spending money, too – in a big way. In 2011, he spent $111,000 on a solid gold guitar which had belonged to the pop star Prince (the money went to charity). Two years later he was even more extravagant – he bought his own private jet!
