WHY IS THE ROSENDALE SCHOOL LIBRARY UNUSUAL? / WHAT THE STUDENTS THINK

For most students, their library is a room in the school with desks, chairs and lots of books. This is not true for the students of Rosendale School. Their library is an old red London bus!

Rosendale School had lots of new students and not enough classrooms. They decided to change the library into a classroom. This gave the school another problem. They had no library. Then a parent had the great idea to use an old bus for the school library.

It took eight months to change the bus into a library. Many people helped make the project possible. For example, students from the school helped paint the bus. Local businesses gave the school money and lots of local people worked for free. Everyone enjoyed working on the new library.

When the library was ready, Rosendale School invited Michael Morpurgo to open it. Michael is a famous writer. He is the author of over 100 books, such as Butterfly Lion and War Horse, which is now a film. Everyone at Rosendale School was very excited when he visited their library.

Everyone loves it! The bus is a fantastic place to read and the students enjoy spending time there. The bus library was lots of fun to make and it is great fun to use.
