Today, my family and I are having a picnic at the park. It was a

1. _____ day. The sky was so packed with clouds, we couldn't see a single square of blue! "Did you check the weather forecast?"

Mother asked Father. "Ah! It wouldn't rain!" my father said confidently while carrying the picnic 2. _____ filled with all kinds of 3. _____

and food. We brought chocolate bars, potato chips and cheddar cheese along with yummy spaghetti. I was feeling ravenous. Mother laid out the mat and Father placed the heavy picnic basket on it. We also brought a

4. _____ filled with ice and iced drinks. Iced drinks are not my Father's cup of tea. Instead, he brought his piping hot coffee in a

5. _____ flask. "Let's tuck in!" Mother said, passing us the plastic

6. _____ so we can have some food. Just as she said that, the thunder started rumbling. Without a warning, it was raining cats and dogs and our sandwiches were soaked! Mother glared at Father for a brief moment.

"Let's take a 7. _____ and do it another time?" Father shrugged. Mother wasn't too happy and I was disappointed I couldn't eat the yummy spaghetti. At least, we have snacks. Half a loaf is better than none!
