Dear Wildlife Magazine,

Here's my photo of an elephant for the competition. You can see that it's an African elephant because it's got bigger ears than an Asian elephant. African elephants often live in the savannah and Asian elephants live in the jungle. It's hotter and sunnier in the savannah than in the jungle. The African elephant uses its big ears to stay cool.

African elephants are taller and heavier than Asian elephants. They can grow 4 metres tall and weigh up to 7,000 kg. They aren't slow – they're faster than Asian elephants. They're also better than Asian elephants at holding things.

I hope you like my photo.
