Dr. Cornelia Vertenstein, a 92-year-old Holocaust survivor, has taught piano lessons at her Denver home for more than half a century. But when the coronavirus swept in, most of her students were forced to stay home. Special concern was reserved for older adults. And Vertenstein was suddenly alone.

Nevertheless, she insisted that the lessons would continue. Vertenstein took to calling the children on their cellphones or using FaceTime on her iPad, with the students' phones propped up so she could see their hands. She held spring recitals, which she worried she'd have to cancel.

"With great pride I introduce my students who prepared themselves with discipline and determination in difficult circumstances," she said at the start of the recitals. "When I was a little girl I couldn't go to public schools because of my religion. And they created a little school in the basement of an old building which sometimes had heat and sometimes didn't. Great minds and achievements came out of that school. Which taught me in any situation you can strive, learn, look ahead and have dreams."
