

➡ To ask if someone has done something in his life, we use EVER in the question followed by a past participle.

Have you ever met a famous person?

If we refer to something we have never done in our lives, we usually reply with NEVER.

I've never played golf.

Leslie: What are you doing? What is this list?

Kikki: These are the things I (1) have done (do) in my life!

Leslie: And what about this list?

Kikki: These are the things (2) I (not do) in my life!

Leslie: Let's see. (3) (you / ever see) the Statue of Liberty, in New York?

Kikki: Well, I (4) (see) photos but I (5) (never be) to New York.

Leslie: (6) (you / ever fly) in a hot air balloon?

Kikki: No, I (7) Hey, that's a fantastic idea! I'll write it down.

Leslie: (8) (you / ever see) the earth from space?

Kikki: No, I (9) That's number one on my list. Let's do it together one day!

Leslie: Brilliant idea!

➡ Have been to - have gone to

- We use has / have been in order to talk about one's experiences, places one has been to, places one has travelled to.

He likes adventure. He's been to Africa, Asia and Australia.

- We use has / have gone in order to say that one has gone somewhere and is still there. The phrase have gone to is the answer we get when we look for someone who is away.

Where's Mary? She's gone to the supermarket.

Complete with have / has gone or have / has been.

- 1 We have been to Canada many times. It's a nice country.
- 2 Mary isn't here at the moment. She to the park.
- 3 Mr and Mrs Banks are on holiday. They to Paris.
- 4 He was here an hour ago but I think he home.
- 5 Nick was very tired. He to bed.
- 6 you ever to the USA?
- 7 He's a pilot. He to all the countries in Europe.
- 8 I am alone. My parents to the theatre.

Tip

We use have/has gone to to answer when asked where someone is.

Where is Tom?

He's gone to the cinema.

He's been to the cinema. ✗
