The Countess of Morcar's blue diamond dissappeared from her room at the Cosmopolitan Hotel on the 22nd of this month. The police think John Horner, 26 years old, took the diamond from a jewel box when he went to repair the window in the room. James Ryder, the assistant manager of the hotel, told the court: "I took Horner to the Countess's room but then I went away for some time.

When I came back, Horner wasn't there, and I found the open box, without the jewel in it, on the table next to the bed. The police are going to interrogate the Countess's maid and other people that work in the hotel to see if they can get more information. This is a serious crime. When they find the thief, he's going to go to prision for about 10 years.
