Danny Fictional Person

1 Description Source: The contemporary realistic fiction genre Appearance: "This is how I looked at the time" Personality: "My father was the most marvelous and exciting father any boy ever had"	3 Development Problem: See fly-kites together, make a hot air balloon, and fix cars together, even go poaching together. Goal: Before Mr. Hazel's big pheasant shooting party, we capture 100 pheasants. Outcome: Father calls me the "Champion of the World"
2 Insights Thoughts: It is told from the first person point of view by Danny, the main character. Feelings: The strong relationship between a father and a son.	4 Memorable Interactions Quote: Doc: Spencer face as "brown and wrinkled as a shriveled apple" Action: The way that Danny talks directly to the reader draws them in and gives the story a realistic feel. Interactions: Danny spends more time with his father than he does with any other person.
5 Personal Connection Personal Connection: Through this book, Dahl seems to be saying that single fathers can raise children just as well as two parents combined. Danny's father did all of the things that a mother would normally do, plus all of the fatherly tasks as well.
