Elephants 	Elephants are mammals. They live in the savannah in Africa and rainforests in India. They have a long trunk, long teeth called tusks, a small tail, and big ears. They don't have hooves or paws. They have toenails. Elephants don't eat meat. They eat leaves, bark, roots, fruit and grass. African Elephants are the biggest land mammals on earth. (Blue whales are bigger than African elephants, but they are in the ocean). Indian elephants are smaller than African elephants. African elephants have bigger ears than Indian elephants. It is very hot in the savannah. Elephants use their trunks to spray themselves with water and dirt, and also to grab food. They use their long tusks to dig roots.
