Math Vocabulary

Complete the text with the words in the box

round　　　ten　　　　decimal place　decimal point　order

multiply　　divide　　　thousand　　　　place value

Our number system is based around _____ columns. Each column has a value that is _____ times bigger than the previous one.

When you use a number that is not an exact whole number, you use a _____ to separate the ones, tens, hundred etc. from the tenths, hundredths, thousandths etc.

When you _____a number by ten, each digit becomes ten times larger and then appears in the next column to the left.
When you _____a number by ten, each digit becomes ten times smaller and then appears in the next column to the right.

You can compare the value of each digit in a number to help you put them in _____.
Sometimes you need to _____ a number. This reduces its accuracy but can make it easier to calculate with.

Numbers that have been rounded to the nearest _____ will end in three 0s.
Numbers that have been rounded to one _____will have exactly one number after the decimal point.