Planning your Mystery

SETTING: Decide where your story will take place. A mystery can take place anywhere, but here are some ideas: a school, an amusement park, a baseball field, your house, an airport, the mall, or the library. Don't forget to include the time the crime was committed in the setting of your story.

What is your setting?

PROBLEM: In order for a story to be a mystery, there must be a puzzle, secret, or mysterious problem to be solved. You must decide what crime or prank has been committed, or what has been stolen, or what mysterious event will happen in your story. Some suggestions include something being stolen, something or someone gone missing, anonymous letters being sent to a character, strange smells or unexplainable noises, etc

What is your problem?

SUSPECTS: You will need to create suspects for your mystery story. You must have at least three suspects. You will need to write a short description of each suspect and why they are suspected of committing the crime.

Circle the suspect who will end up being guilty of the crime.

Who are your suspects?

Ralph Rosen

• The Information Desk Attendant

Sandi Chin, Ph.D.

• The Paleontologist

Billy Seasons

• The Cook

Dave Hammer

• The Maintenance Supervisor

Dr. Celia Crownworthy

• The Museum Director

DETECTIVE: You will need to have a detective in your story. The detective can be a child or an adult. Describe your detective and tell a little bit about him or her. If your detective has a partner or a helper, describe him or her as well.

Who are the detectives in your story?

CLUES: You must include clues that lead to the suspects. These clues might include fingerprints, witnesses, items left at the scene of the crime, no alibi for the suspect, or anything else that you think might help the reader figure out who is guilty.

What are the clues in your story?
