Come and WWOOF!

No, we aren't talking about the noise a dog makes but the opportunity to be a 'Willing Worker on an Organic Farm'. For those who want to have a positive ¹..... on the world around them, WWOOF organisations can help. They own woodlands, farms and other areas of land, and invite volunteers to come along and help out, with the ²..... of teaching volunteers about organic growing. It also enables organisations to get the help they need on the land. As a volunteer, you'll find out how to save ³....., use natural methods to grow food, and learn about how organic farming can make a ⁴..... difference to our health.

Volunteers are provided with basic accommodation and food – though you will have to ⁵..... vegetables for dinner and clean up afterwards! You may have to deal with ⁶..... little luxuries like hot showers and chocolate, and there are rules to ⁷.....: getting up early, working hard and doing any job you're asked to do. A positive ⁸..... is really important! Could this be you?
