

The Komodo Dragon

- The komodo dragon is in danger of extinction because of the illegal hunting and the harm to their habitat.
- When komodo dragons grow, they can be as long as 3 meters.
- Komodo dragons can detect their prey 10 kilometers away.
- A komodo dragon can weigh up to 90 kilos.
- Komodo dragons are predators and carnivorous.
- There are only 4000 komodo dragons left around the world.
- Komodo dragons have 60 sharp teeth and their saliva is considered to be venomous.
- The komodo dragon was first discovered in Indonesia in 1919.
- Komodo dragon are born from eggs, so they are oviparous.
- Komodo dragons are considered to be excellent athletes because they can climb trees, swim and run very fast.
- They have thick scales to protect them from danger.
- A komodo dragon can live up to 50 years.
- They are very dangerous.

Characteristics/ Appearance
How they hunt
Life expectancy and endangered