Dear Zara

Having a wonderful holiday. It's so nice to . We're staying at an amazing campsite up in the mountains. It's very and we had to drive up an unbelievably road to get here. But once we made it, the views over the countryside made the drive worthwhile. I'm sending a photo of our camping spot.

Dear Nico

This is turning out to be probably the most holiday I've ever had. The town is absolutely with lots of very buildings. Our hotel is - if a little from the transport point of view - and the food in this area is . These are some of the old buildings in the town.

Wish you were here too!

Holiday brochures

These are often written in quite exaggerated language. Here are some typical adjectives with nouns that they collocate with.

views / scenery / pistes (ski slopes) [breathtaking (like stunning) suggests that something is so magnificent that it takes your breath away] access / club / shops [only the most special people can use the facilities] feeling / ride / walk [makes you feel excited and full of energy] beauty / charm / location [unusual and more exciting than your everyday reality] surroundings / film star / hotel [especially exciting and attractive] cruise ship / accommodation / lifestyle [provides great comfort] streets / villages / cottage [very pretty; attractive to look at - as pretty as a picture] charm / village / woodland [still in a beautiful and natural state] opportunity / charm / facilities [so special it does not exist anywhere else]
