

Hello, good morning guys!

Today we are going to see the pages 15 and 17.

In the first page, you can see some pieces of a puzzle. These pieces belong to paintings of the Prehistoric art.

Prehistoric paintings of buffalos appear on the walls of the Cave of Altamira in Santillana del Mar, in Cantabria.

The task for this week is to cut out the pieces to the puzzle at page 15. After this, you have to glue them in the correct place to complete the puzzle, at page 17.

You only need to use scissors and glue.

When you finish doing it, you have to click on the "Learn more". Here you can find some information about this topic.

To end the task, you have to answer to these questions in a paper of a notebook. Please, show me your answers.

1. Do you like Prehistoric paintings? Why? Why not?
2. If you had to paint in a cave, what kind of paintings would you draw?
3. We usually see animals in these paintings. Why do you think it can be?

That's all mates!

See you in class ;-)
