| ENGLISH LEVEL A2 | Big or small, save them all | WEEK30 |

What wild animals are living in Perú?
Are they in danger of extinction?

Leerás artículos que describen animales en centros de rescate, identificando el uso de CONECTORES DE SECUENCIA y uso de OBJECT PRONOUN. Finalmente, crearás un texto usando lo aprendido mientras ayudas a crear conciencia sobre la protección de animales en peligro de extinción.

APRENDO EN CASA – SAVING ENDANGERED ANIMALS

Two stories in two rescue centres

It is believed that Naga was from the highlands of Arequipa. When she was still a young cub she was captured and brought to an illegal zoo where she was kept in a small cage.

Fortunately, she was rescued by volunteers from the Cusco Wildlife Rescue Centre. At the centre she received the care that she needed for a complete recovery.

She did not have enough food to eat or a large place to move around.
She became skinny and weak. She lived like this for five months.
When Naga recovered, the volunteers from the rescue centre released her back into the mountains of Arequipa. We hope that she is happy and free in her natural habitat.

Exercise 1

Unscramble the story below. Match with the correct order. Example

a. Then she opened the box and found three little cats .

b. After that, my aunt fed them and took them to the veterinarian

c. One day, my aunt heard a noise coming from a box next to the garbage can

d. Finally, my aunt took them to a wildlife rescue centre

e. When the veterinarian saw them, he was very surprised. They were wild Andean cats

4. The story includes images related to the story to make it more attractive. .	5p

Auto evaluación y reflexión:

¿Puedo entender un texto que describe historias en past?

¿Puedo describir acciones para contar una historia usando el simple past?

¿Puedo usar Conectores de secuencia y object pronouns correctamente?

Transcripcion del Audio.

Marta: Hi Oliver. What are you doing?

Oliver: I'm just looking at these photos that I took last year at the Amazon Wildlife Rescue Centre.

Marta: What is this animal?

Oliver: This is a giant river otter. Her name is Dorita. Did I tell you her story?

Marta: No, please tell me about her.

Oliver: One day, some poachers captured her and sold her on the black market.

Marta: Poor thing! What happened after that?

Oliver: A teenager saw her in a restaurant as a pet.

Marta: As a ped?

Oliver: He called the rescue centre volunteers and told them about Dorita.

Marta: What did they do?

Oliver: They went to the restaurant and rescued her. She was skinny and sad.

Oliver: Yes. With the help of the volunteers she fully recovered. When I took the photo, the people at the wildlife rescue centre were preparing to release her back into the Amazon river.

Marta: Cool story. What did you learn from it?

Oliver: That wild animals should always be free. They are not pets.
