Suddenly, this police car appeared and two police officers got out and started shouting at us. We tried 8) (talk) _____ to them and find out what the problem was, but they refused to listen to us. To our surprise, we 9) (push) _____ in the back of the police car and now Frank and I 10) (sit) _____ in a police cell, feeling absolutely terrified and freezing cold. What can we do?

Many people have mixed feelings about the use of mobile phones in public places like restaurants and cinemas. Whereas they were almost unknown twenty years ago, these days they are part of everyone's life and the world would now feel a strange place without them.

One of the strongest arguments in favour of prohibiting mobile phones is the annoyance they cause other people. Although people are always asked to turn off their mobiles when they go to the cinema, you can be sure that the film you are watching will be interrupted by the sound of at least five ringtones! A. ____ For this reason, many people would be delighted if mobile phones were prohibited in places where they might irritate other people.

On the other hand, there are a number of arguments against such prohibition. It is really difficult to stop people bringing their mobile phones into public places, and therefore, it would be virtually impossible to enforce any restriction. B. ____ And despite being asked to turn their mobile phones off, some people insist on leaving them on, or simply forget to silence them. Perhaps the most important point is that in spite of all the disadvantages, many people these days simply feel they can't live without their mobile.

It seems to me that a prohibition on mobile phones would be useless. People will always find a way round any restriction. But they should be discouraged from using them in public places, unless it is absolutely necessary. C. ____ However, there will always be someone who thinks their call is more important than other people's peace!

Task A Insert the sentences/clauses 1 to 3 in the corresponding blank and complete the boxes with A, B or C.

- 1 Some people would think their rights aren't respected, while other people would say they need them in case of an emergency.
- 2 What is more, many people insist on continuing their conversation even though hundreds of people can hear them!
- 3 People should be made aware that it's bad manners to use them at certain times.

Task B Circle T for true and F for false. Correct the false statement/s on the blank line/s below.

- 4 Twenty years ago most people already used mobile phones.
