- It was Monday. Wanda did not come to school. Nobody noticed it.
- Peggy and her friend Maggie teased Wanda every day. Peggy would ask Wanda how many dresses she had. She would always reply “hundred” and had sixty pairs of shoes.
- Wanda was a quiet girl remaining by herself. She belonged to a poor polish family. She resided in Boggins Heights and came to school walking with muddy shoes.
- Maddie was a poor girl. She would feel it bad when Maddie teased Wanda. But she didn’t say anything as feared she might be teased in place of Wanda.
- She would always wear the same blue dress and the same muddy shoes to school.
- There was a drawing competition for the boys and girls in the class
- Miss Mason announced the results of the competition. Jack Beggles had won among the boys and Wanda among the girls.
- Wanda had drawn a hundred dresses.
- All clapped their hands when the winners’ names were announced.

- Everybody hoped that Peggy would win as she had had earlier.
