

A- CHOOSE THE CORRECT OPTION:

TOO YOUNG FOR A MOBILE

On a train recently, I couldn't my eyes. A 4-year-old girl was using a bright pink mobile phone, not playing with it, but using it. She was obviously talking to a friend and got quite upset when we went through a tunnel and she lost the But a few moments later she was pressing the bright red buttons and calling her friend

My first thought was that her parents have been insane to have given their young daughter a real mobile phone and my second thought was that whoever up with the idea of a phone for 4-year-olds was completely irresponsible.

I had always thought that parents were generally against their children having mobiles. However, I have learnt that parental attitudes have undergone a change in recent years because scientific research has not proven any related health problems. Nevertheless, experts agree that mobile phones can still a lot of harm to children psychologically.

B- COMPLETE WITH ONE WORD:

SHAKESPEAREAN RAP!

What have Shakespearean plays and rap in common? first, they seem worlds apart. However, both use the popular language of the day and are best enjoyed in performance. And both deal life's "big issues-" - only love and friendship but also darker emotions as jealousy , violence and prejudice.

The rapper Tupac Shakur, ... lyrics could be poetic as well as contentious, was known to love Shakespeare. He admired Romeo and Juliet particular. Comparing the Montagues and Capulets to twentieth- century street gangs.
