About Fiona and her great idea

Fiona enjoyed music most at school. She liked art and maths too, but because it was hard for Fiona to spell words correctly or to understand texts, she didn't enjoy being at school. In English, she had lots of problems. So, when Fiona was 11, her parents decided she should leave school and be taught differently at home. There, she learnt about business and working on computers, and spent more time happily studying art, exercising and practicing on her piano. Fiona's grandmother started teaching her to cook too, which, like her mother and aunt, she really enjoyed doing. One day, she told her her secret way of making jam. Fiona made too much for the family to eat so she took it to other people in her street. She made more and more jam. It tasted so good that her parents' friends started buying it from her. Fiona added all her costs together then decided on a price. Then she made a business plan on the computer with help from her dad. Her jam is now sold at a weekly market. It tastes wonderful and it's healthy because Fiona uses grape juice instead of sugar to make it. 'I'm still 15 but I'm already a businesswoman!' Fiona laughs. 'Last week I earned £104 because 91 different customers bought 65 kilos of my jam, and a supermarket wants to sell it too. My career is in jam-making and I think it's great!'
