

Part of working at the grocery store is to know where different things go. This can also help when we are shopping. There are 8 different departments at the grocery store.

Each department has different items.
Let's look at them together.

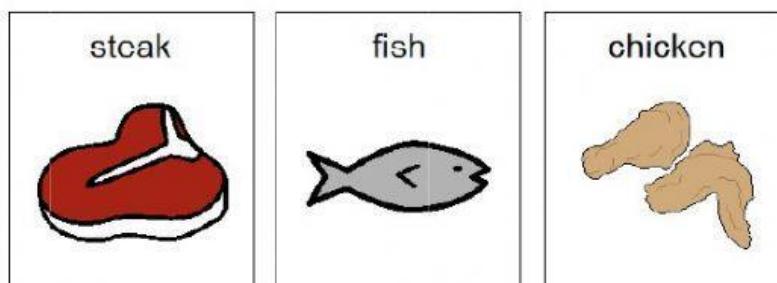

The dairy section is where you'll find things made with milk. Those things include:

What do you like?

The meat market is where you will find fresh and packaged meats. These include

What do you like?

grocery

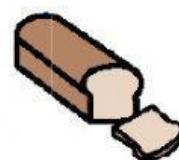

The grocery department is the largest part of the store. This is where the different aisles of the store are. Here you'll find boxed, bagged and canned items like:

cereal bread

beans

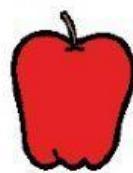

What do you like?

Produce

The produce department is at the front of the store. Here is where you'll find loose fresh fruits and vegetable like:

apples

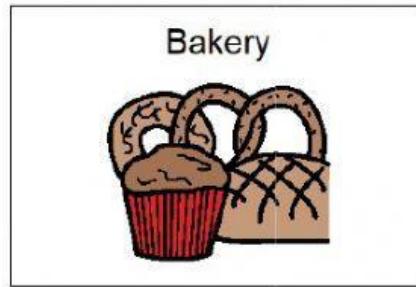

corn

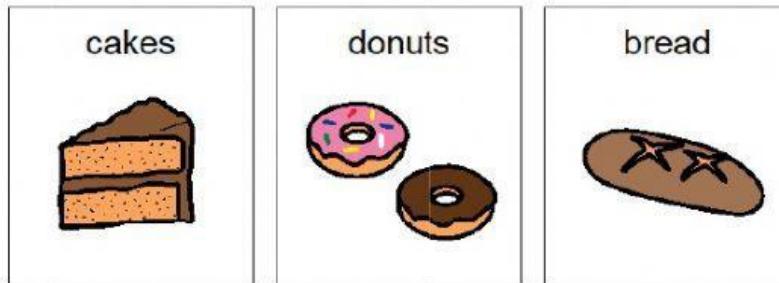

strawberry

What do you like?

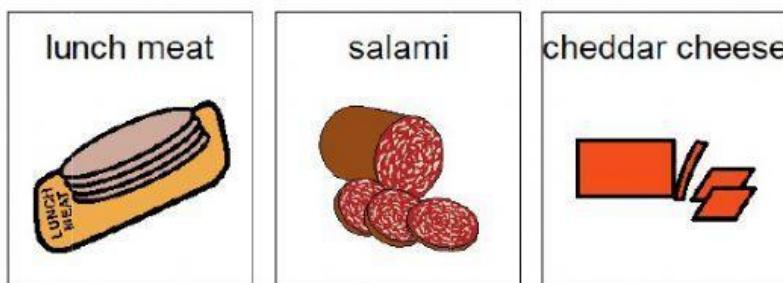

The bakery is where you'll find fresh baked items either in a display case, wrapped, boxed or loose. Here you'll find

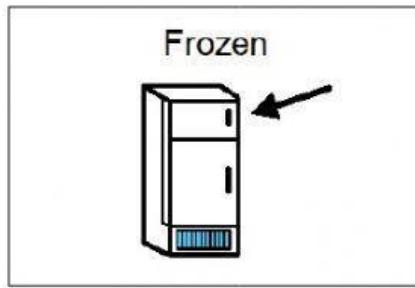

What do you like?

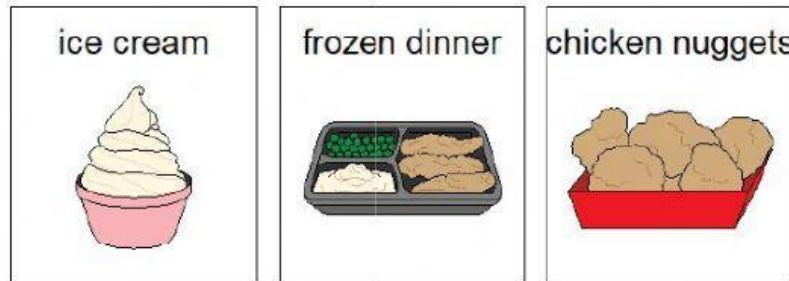

The deli is where you will order fresh sliced lunchmeat and cheese for sandwiches. Everything will be behind a display case and you'll have to talk to someone to order things such as

What do you like?

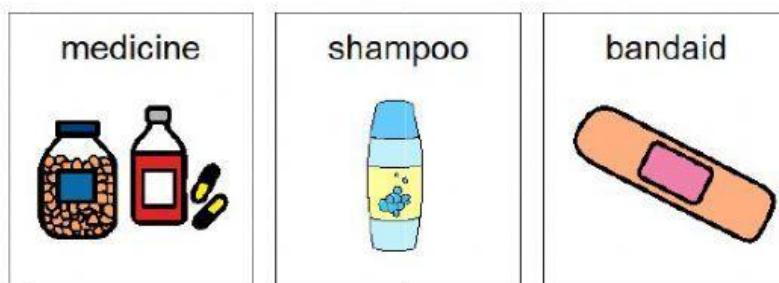

Another department is the frozen department. Everything here will be behind a door and will be frozen. Here you'll find

What do you like?

The last department is the pharmacy department. Here you'll find medicine and personal care products either on the shelf or behind the counter.

the grocery store can be a big place so it is important to remember where different things go. This can help me when I am working or shopping at the grocery store.

Which department is your favorite?

