The Review of "5cm," the Movie

The story started by introducing the setting of the movie. There is a friendship of five different persons who has different characters. One of them suggests that they go out from the box for three months without any communication. After three months, they met again and tried to hike Mount Semeru. Their journey was not well, they met some problems. After they fought with several problems they finally reach the top of the mountain called Mahameru.

The things I like from this movie is the character personalities which are quiet unique and are all different from one another. The actor act so well that make the audience believe that it is their true personalities. The friendship among them is filled with love story during their journey and it was so funny and lovely. The other thing that makes me fascinated after watching this movie is that the producer set the story on the highest mountain in Java with its spectacular and various natural beauties.

The movie is recommended but I was quite disappointed with the story. To relax and director delivers Nationalism messages at the end of the movie, but that's just like a complement to the ending. The love story is unclear, so the audience still have big question mark and unsatisfied with it. Overall, this movie is worth to be watched to relax and open our minds to enjoy the beauty of Indonesia.
