PASSAGE 1: SUE'S SURPRISE

Sue's father picked her up from school. When they arrived home, there was an unfamiliar car in the driveway. It was the colour of a shiny new quarter. Sue looked at the car and tried to guess who could be visiting their home.

Maybe it was Aunt Mel and Fluffy. Sue loved to hold Fluffy and listen to him purr. But, it could not be them because Aunt Mel was still at work. Was it Mrs. Jill, the dance teacher? She hoped not, because Mrs. Jill always wanted her to show off the new dance steps she had learned. Could it be that her prayers were answered? Had Mr. Wells come to fix the television so that she could watch 'Fuller House,' her favourite television programme? Her eyes glowed with excitement; She really wanted to know who the visitor was.

As soon as the car was parked, Sue jumped out of it and hurried into the house to question her mother. She looked around the kitchen, but her mother was not visible. She called for her, but there was no answer. Sue turned to go back to the car to meet her father. PASSAGE 2

Students at Markham School have their share of problems, like students at most schools. However, Markham's students work together to solve problems through a peer mediation program.

First, students volunteer to be peer mediators. This means they are willing to help their peers, or fellow students, to solve problems. Next, a group of teachers and student leaders interviews the volunteers. They look for people who respect other students and can keep talks private. After the peer helpers are chosen, they go to several training sessions. There they role-play listening to problems and practice helping to solve them. Finally, they are ready to serve as peer mediators.
