

The garbage patch is a huge area of marine pollution in the Pacific Ocean.

The garbage patch mainly consists of plastic.

The garbage patch is approximately 2,200 kilometres long and 800 kilometres wide.

The garbage patch can easily be investigated by ship.

The garbage patch is a soup of plastic concentrated from the surface to depth of 10 metres.