Breakfast Around the World

Do you eat eggs for breakfast? Eggs give you lots of energy* to begin your day, so they are a popular breakfast food around the world.

In Russia, people like to eat eggs for breakfast. They also like sandwiches and pancakes. They usually drink tea or coffee.

In England, some people eat a big breakfast. They eat eggs, sausages, potatoes and tomatoes. Other people in England like to eat a small breakfast. They like cereal, a piece of toast with butter and jam, orange juice and tea or coffee.

Eggs, bread and coffee aren't popular in China. Some people in China eat rice* for all three meals every day – for breakfast, lunch and supper! They also eat a special pancake and a special soup.

A lot of people don't have time to eat a big breakfast. In the USA, people eat cereal with milk or yogurt. But on days when they don't work, they eat eggs, bread, potatoes, pancakes, fresh fruit and sometimes meat!

There are lots of delicious things you can eat for breakfast. But eggs or no eggs, everyone needs to begin the day with a healthy breakfast.
