Future 1

We can refer to the future in English by using will, be going to or by using present tenses. Sometimes there is little difference between will and be going to, but at other times we use them in different ways.

Will

● Form

Form will future using will + infinitive without to. The negative of will is won't. The short form of will in speech and informal writing is 'll.

What do you think will happen? I'll tell you later.

There won't be any lessons tomorrow.

In formal English we also use shall with I and we to refer to the future. This is becoming rare.

● Meaning

Use will to talk generally about future beliefs, opinions, hopes and predictions. There is usually a time expression. Add perhaps, probably or definitely to show how certain or uncertain we are about our predictions.

In the next century, most people will probably live in big cities.

Perhaps it'll rain tomorrow.*

United will definitely win tonight.

*Probably and definitely come after will but before won't.*

She'll probably come with us tonight.

She probably won't come with us tonight.

Be going to

● Form

Form be going to future with the verb be + going + the infinitive.

Jean is going to learn to drive.

Tim and Ann are going to travel abroad next year.

● Meaning

1 Use be going to for plans and intentions. The plan may be in the near future, or more distant.

I'm going to do lots of work this evening.

After I finish university I'm going to travel all over Europe by InterRail.

2 Use be going to for prediction when we can see in the present situation that something is going to happen.

Look out! You're going to drop the plates!

Present continuous

● Form

See Grammar 2 for the form of the present continuous.

I'm meeting my mother for lunch at one.

● Meaning

Use the present continuous future to talk about things we have arranged to do, such as social arrangements and appointments. There is usually a time expression.

A: Are you doing anything on Friday evening?

B: Not really. Why?

A: I'm having a party. Would you like to come?

State verbs (e.g. be, know) are not usually used in a continuous form (see Grammar 2), so we use will or going to with these verbs.

I'll be back on Friday.

I'm going to be back on Friday.

Will or going to?

We can make predictions with will and going to, and on most occasions either is possible.

I think it's going to/it'll probably rain tomorrow.

If there is strong evidence in the present situation, then we generally use going to:

I think it's going to rain this afternoon. (looking up at black clouds in the sky)

Going to or present continuous?

We use going to and the present continuous for plans and arrangements, and either is usually possible.

I'm going to have/I'm having a party on Friday.

Going to suggests that the details are not yet finalized – it's still just a plan.

Jean is going to have another driving lesson soon. (a plan, with no specific time)

The present continuous suggests that the arrangement is more fixed, with a time and a place.

Jean is having her driving lesson this afternoon. (it's fixed, in her diary)

Other meanings of will and shall

Will and shall have other meanings. See Grammar 9 and Grammar 22.

Is that the phone ringing? I'll answer it. (a spontaneous decision)

I'll do the best that I can to help you. (a promise)

Shall I help you? (offer/suggestion)

GRAMMAR

Future 2

Future continuous

- Form

Form the future continuous with will + be + the -ing form of the verb.

This time tomorrow I'll be eating lunch on the plane.

- Meaning

1 Use future continuous to imagine an activity in progress in the future. We often do this when we compare what we are doing now with what we will be doing in the future. There is nearly always a time expression.

Where will you be living in five years' time?

2 Use the future continuous to say that we are sure something will happen.

We'll be holding a meeting soon, so we can decide then.

Future perfect

- Form

Form the future perfect with will + have + the past participle.

By the time we get to the cinema, the film will have begun.

- Meaning

Use the future perfect to look back from one point in the future to an earlier event.

We often use by or by the time with the future perfect.

By next week I'll have collected over 1000 euros for charity.

The situation has not happened yet, but at a certain time in the future it will happen.

Present simple

- We often use the present simple to talk about events in the future which are part of a timetable, programme or calendar.

Jim's plane leaves at 12.00.

Our head teacher retires next year.

- Time clauses

In some will sentences there is a time clause, with a time word followed by the present simple. These time words are always followed by the present simple to talk about the future: when, after, before, unless, in case, as soon as, until, by the time, the next time.

When I see her again, I'll tell her your news.

Let's run home before it rains.

Take an umbrella, in case it rains.

As soon as we're ready, we'll phone you.

Please wait here until Mrs Hall comes back.

INTERMEDIATE LANGUAGE PRACTICE

We can also use the present perfect with these words to emphasize that an action is complete.

Hand in your paper as soon as you have finished.

Functions using will and shall

When we say that a verb form has a 'function', we mean that we use it for a purpose like 'promising' or 'suggesting' rather than to refer to time. Many uses of will and shall are more easily described in this way.

I'll try as hard as I can.

- Refusal

I won't tell you!

Shall I open the door for you?

- Request

Will you carry this bag for me?

- Suggestion
