

Pat's dream day

Pat and his family lived in a city by the sea. Their building was very tall, and their apartment was on floor ten. He often sat on the balcony and watched the big ships sailing in. They came from different countries and brought sweet fruit like mangoes and things like phones and computers too.

EXAMPLES:

Pat's home was ...in a city.. by the sea.

The family lived on ...floor ten... of the building.

QUESTIONS:

Pat liked to sit outside (1) and watch the big ships.

Sometimes, there were (2) or computers inside the ships.

Pat's grandfather loved ships and he was very good at painting. Pat's family had lots of his pictures of old boats on the walls inside their apartment. Pat's grandfather knew exciting stories about pirates and ships. Pat and his sister Sally loved listening to them before they went to bed. Pat had dreams about finding treasure under the ground on islands. He practised reading maps with his dad, who was a teacher.

On the apartment walls, there were pictures with (3) on them.

Grandpa told Pat and Sally (4) about pirates and ships.

In his dreams, Pat went to (5) and found treasure.

Then one day, Pat's grandparents came to the apartment at eight o'clock.

"Come on!" Grandpa shouted. "I'm taking you to see something!"

Pat and Sally put on their boots and coats and the four of them went out of the building, then very quickly down the street. When they got to the water, they were very surprised to see a big old pirate ship there.

"Today, some people are making a film here," said Grandma.

That day, Pat and Sally walked around the ship and wore pirate clothes. He didn't need a pirate story that night.

It was eight o'clock when (6) came to get the children.

The children dressed up in (7) and walked around the ship.
