

The three biggest cities in Switzerland are Geneva, Zurich and Basel. Geneva is probably more famous than Zurich and Basel because the United Nations is based here. Basel is smaller than Geneva and Zurich, but it's famous for its museums and it has the oldest university in Switzerland. Zurich is the biggest city in Switzerland but it's less polluted than many other modern cities. It's also easier to travel round because public transport is fast.

Presentation

- Use the comparative form to compare things. We often use it with than: Geneva is more famous than Zurich and Basel.
- Use the superlative form to compare one thing with others in a group: Zurich is the biggest city in Switzerland. (= bigger than all the other cities in Switzerland)

Adjective	Comparative	Superlative big	bigger	biggest small	smaller	smallest old	older	oldest new	newer	newest
fast	faster	fastest easy	easier	easiest famous	more famous	most famous modern	more modern	most modern
good	better	best

Add -er or -est to one-syllable adjectives: small → smaller/smallest

With most adjectives of two syllables or more, use more/most: famous → more/most famous

With some two-syllable adjectives (often ending in -y, -le, -ow, -er), add -er/-est: easy → easier/easiest

Spelling rules

- Add -r/-st with adjectives ending in -e: nice → nicer/nicest
- For adjectives ending in -y, change -y to -i: easy → easier/easiest
- For one-syllable adjectives ending in consonant–vowel–consonant, double the final consonant: big → bigger/biggest. But don't double the w, x or y: slow → slower/slowest

Irregular adjectives

There are three common irregular adjectives:

good → better/best

bad → worse/worst

far → further/furthest or farther/farthest less/least

To make a negative comparison, use less/least + adjective: polluted → less polluted / least polluted
