supposed to be	shameful	incapable	coasting	ashamed of keeping a lot hidden	retirement	pathetic	have a grip on the basics	crippling debt
a college graduate	tends to	working two jobs	sober

"I just feel like I should be doing better. I'm nowhere near ..... I'm.....: I'm a licensed tour guide, and I make videos for businesses. But I'm ..... it. Because I'm sixty-five years old, I'm ....., and I'm ..... done by now. I'm supposed to be ..... But I'm not even close. I feel like I still don't even .....: how to make a living, how to keep my house in order, how to take care of myself. And it feels ..... I feel not grown up. Like I should have learned all of this so long ago. And I'm afraid people will think it's ..... Worse than that. They'll think I'm ..... So I've been ..... I'm luckier than 99 percent of people. I've been ..... for 39 years. I have the greatest wife of 32 years. I don't have any ..... I'm doing OK. I shouldn't have to hide my situation. And being more open has helped. Because once I start telling people, and I see they're not judging me, and that they're still loving me—the shame ..... disappear."

LIVEWORKSHEETS

LIVEWORKSHEETS