Task 4: Read and choose the correct answer.

Table manners are very different in every country. For example, when you are in England you must not lift your soup plate to your mouth. This is very impolite. But when you are in Japan this is completely normal. Lifting your plate to your mouth in Japan is a traditional way of drinking your soup. And also in Japan you don't have to worry about making noise when you drink it. It just shows that you really like the food! But it is not the same in Britain so you shouldn't make noise when eating there.

In Britain people don't put their hands or elbows on the table during the meal. But in Mexico, guests keep their hands on the table all the time. In fact, you should watch what your hands do very carefully. In Arab countries it is impolite when you eat with your left hand so don't do it!

In all the cultures it is impolite to speak when you are eating. Also you should leave some food on your plate because it is considered impolite if you eat everything.

In Ukraine you should not start eating first, you should wait for all the others to start eating with you. You also have to say 'please' and 'thank you' every time you ask and get something. If you don't like some food, don't make faces and sounds that show this and don't say: "Yuk! I hate that!"

The best way to avoid making mistakes in other countries is to watch the host and try to
