

In the cold winter, with snow on the ground,
A cup of hot cocoa, a warm coat I found.
Cuddled up by the fire, feeling so snug,
The cost of joy, just a marshmallow mug.

Clever class clown wears a crown,
Can cartwheel while copying a cop.
Cope with a cup of curd and a clip,
Creating chaos, causing classmates to cry.

Gentle souls, with hearts so pure,
Vegetarian choices, we embrace for sure.
Giant strides, we'll make a change,
Give love and kindness, in our range.

A gentle giant, with a heart so kind,
A gift to the world, their love aligned.
In the zoo, the giraffe stands tall,
Bringing joy to one and all.

Curly-haired cab driver catches crabs,
With a cold comb and a cuff on his wrist.
Careful on the curb, he cruises the city,
Collecting cries of delight as he persists.

Gin and tonic, a classic sip,
Gill in the water, take a dip.
Energy surges, foggy and bright,
Orange tiger comes at night.

Circling and cycling, wild and free.
Celebrating centimeters, cinema and more,
In a cyclone of joy, my spirit will soar.

In the garden, under the sun,
Grown from seeds, a grapevine run.
A group of guests, enjoying the view,
Guessing the flavor, sweet and true.

The giant tiger, ginormous and grand,
Gulped a gallon of grape juice, glass in hand.
With gentle gestures, the vegetarian guide,
Helped the gentle giant find his stride.
